

ABSTRACT

A promotional gimmick utilized in conjunction with other products to aid in an increased marketing ability where the other products include but are not limited to: garments, photographs, illustrated pictures, or paintings; and the gimmick utilized for increased marketability is a fluid emitting device comprising a hand held fluid reservoir containing a finger activated pump providing a burst of fluid which travels through flexible tubing with sufficient length to reach a desirable point; where a miniature low profile fluid dispensing nozzle is attached to a thin surface such as fabric, and a pin hole is made in the thin surface for dispensing the fluid.